Southeastern Legal Foundation

The Southeastern Legal Foundation has spent the last 30 years fighting for limited government, economic freedom and the free enterprise system for all Americans in both a court of law as well as public opinion. SLF's mission is to engage in litigation and public policy advocacy in support of these principles that conservatives hold near and dear. Whether they're battling the ACLU on keeping marriage between a man and woman -- defending homeowners against the government's abuse of power in eminent domain cases -- or disbaring President Clinton -- Southeastern Legal Foundation has always been in the forefront for protecting our Constitutional rights. Some of their recent mailings include making English the official language of driver's license exams, defending homeowners against government land grabs through eminent domain, or ensuring that former President Bill Clinton never gets his law license back.

This is a nationwide list of conservative donors.
